Media Release

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

14 March 2007

Cutcher & Neale supporting Medicos

Cutcher & Neale are proud sponsors of the Australian Medical Association (AMA) of NSW Starting in Private Practice Workshop which will be held on Saturday 31 March 2007 at Citigate Sebel Hotel Sydney. This will be the first year that Cutcher & Neale will sponsor and attend the AMA Workshop. The workshop will outline the most relevant aspects for Medical Professionals wanting to branch into private practice for the first time.

Jarrold Bramble, Partner and head of Cutcher & Neale's Medical Practitioner Division will be there to give the new registrars some insights into business structuring, tax and compliance related issues when commencing practice. Mr Bramble says..."Cutcher & Neale is proud to be associated both with the event and the AMA. We look forward to continuing and strengthening our relationships with the AMA and their members."

Part of building and growing relationships, Cutcher & Neale together with TressCox Lawyers will hold a free information session on service entity arrangements for medical practices. The session to be held on March 28 will also provide an update on superannuation including opportunities that exist leading up to 30 June 2007.

In April 2006, the ATO finalised its guidance for service entity arrangements, potentially affecting medical practices utilising trusts.

Michael Heraghty, the Partner of TressCox Lawyers and Jarrold Bramble, the Partner of Cutcher & Neale, will outline the implications of the new guidelines and how they affect medical practitioners. They will also address what practitioners should do to ensure compliance with these guidelines.

Phillip Smith, the Partner of Cutcher & Neale's Investment Services division, will present an update on superannuation and retirement opportunities.
